

Acting 1

OPEN TO ALL. NO PREREQUISITE. The Fundamentals of an HB technique: Here, you develop the ability to respond truthfully, dynamically, and vividly with fellow actors and the ability to access sensory elements. You tap into the power of imagination and the reservoir of memory. You gain a working understanding of the terms: previous circumstances, destination, inner and outer objects, intentions, obstacles, and conflicts. You develop an awareness of the power, function and dynamics of “place”, and learn to be in a state of discovery, which leads to actions. You develop tools of research and observation and you get comfortable improvising. You begin to measure yourself against professional standards and develop habits of discipline and a strong work ethic. Do understand that these practices take time to master. It takes about a year (20-30 weeks) at this level to really own the skills addressed. Further scene study or performance work will then take root in this fertile ground.

Acting 2

PREREQUISITE: OPEN TO STUDENTS PLACED AT LEVEL 2 AND UP. NEW STUDENTS MUST AUDITION FOR PLACEMENT. (You will be dropped from this course if you register without audition/placement). You continue developing the techniques from Acting 1, now applied toward scene work and the demands of crafting and scoring a role. You'll use Uta Hagen's object exercises to build habits of attention and unlock your rehearsal process. You'll apply improvisation to the exploration of character and circumstances, and develop an approach to preparation. Among the skills you'll practice: discerning beats, intentions, obstacles, and conflict; choosing actions; sensing the turning points in the text; substitution/personalization; endowment of sensory conditions; working with expectations and previous circumstances; finding immediacy in the give and take.

Acting 2-3 with Partnered Exercises

PREREQUISITE: OPEN TO STUDENTS PLACED AT LEVEL 2 AND UP. NEW STUDENTS MUST AUDITION FOR PLACEMENT. (You will be dropped from this course if you register without audition/placement). For intermediate to advanced students who wish to continue developing their tools and process for crafting a role, whether working on stage or on camera, this class is a practice space that uses an optimum blend of Meisner and Hagen exercise work. Find and experience the full range of your voice, your "who am I" voice, with all its untapped possibilities. Using Larry Silverberg's Workbook, you are introduced to Sanford Meisner's Repetition exercises. Working in pairs, receiving and responding from your truthful point of view, in the moment-to-moment exchange of the repetition, you learn to be fully available to your partner. This is essential in the process of building your score and testing actions when working on a part. How I go about fulfilling my objective rests with my partner. Do they bring me closer or further away from what I need? How does what I receive put me in verbal action and keep me responding on impulse instead of "thinking" or planning? How does it get me to the next thing I need to do verbally or physically or both? Continuing with the technique, you craft exercises using your imagination and an "element of truth" -- a relationship with someone extremely meaningful to you, for whom you are doing a physically difficult activity that serves as your objective. These are partnered improvisations. More advanced students will combine this work with Uta Hagen's Destination exercise and other object exercises from her sequence. Students are encouraged to audit before enrolling in the class. Required Reading: The Sanford Meisner Approach: Workbook 1, An Actor's Workbook by Larry Silverberg (Available for purchase online or in-person at the registration office.) Expected rehearsal time outside of class: 3-6 hours/week

Acting for Teens: Ages 14-17

This class for teenagers builds on the basics of the "Game of Make Believe" introduced in Acting for Young People aged 9-13, starting from improvisations and moving into work on scenes. You will discover how to use yourself, your experiences and imagination to create a character in a play or story. Your belief and whole-hearted commitment to the circumstances of the play make it real for the audience. In an atmosphere of creative play and self-discovery, you will come to understand and experience the level of preparation and discipline you will need to try for a place in the professional theater. We'll also work on how to prepare for auditions and cold readings.

Acting for Young People: Ages 9-13

OPEN TO ALL. NO PREREQUISITE. When the actor believes, we believe. The child's natural instinct for play is the foundation of the actor's process. Using the game of make believe to get into the "shoes" of the character, we begin to play with the possibilities that game invites in us. In order to believe I am the character, I must begin to learn all I can about who "I" am in the role: what surrounds and affects me, what I know, where I have been and where I am going; what I want, and what I do to get it or to make it happen. We use improvisation to awaken and explore creative impulses. Theatre games and exercises expand imagination, awareness, concentration, expressivity, and help build skills of communication, cooperation, and collaboration. Through text work designed for the young performer, we make strong, specific, meaningful connection to the language and circumstances of the play, bringing the author's words to life. Through acting, young people gain compassionate insight about themselves and about the world around them; gain poise and confidence; develop problem-solving skills; and engage with peers and mentors in a joyful, collaborative process.

Acting Improvisation

OPEN TO ALL. NO PREREQUISITE. For actors who want to improve their acting skills through improvisation, this class amplifies the technique work in Level 1 and supports the work with scenes in Levels 2 and 3. The first session will be dedicated to the choices you need to make to structure a viable improvisation, with emphasis placed on circumstances, relationships, tension and subtext. In the following sessions you will improvise scenes based on play and film summaries given a short preparation period in class. There is no work outside of class. Through this inventive process you develop immediacy, creativity and partnering skills, and hone your instincts for making productive dramatic choices. Actors of all levels are welcome.

Acting in English

OPEN TO ALL. NO PREREQUISITE. For actors who have English as a second language. Through text analysis, table reading, and guided rehearsal, you explore the vocabulary, grammar, subtext and context of a given script. The goal is to develop your language skills on multiple levels with a focus on improving your ability to perform in English.

Acting the Song

PREREQUISITE: OPEN TO STUDENTS PLACED AT LEVEL 2 AND UP. NEW STUDENTS MUST AUDITION FOR PLACEMENT. (You will be dropped from this course if you register without audition/placement). This course applies the skills developed in Acting 1 and 2 to musical performance—to the presentation and articulation of a song, as it arises from the scene and from the life of the character. You will work to balance correct vocal technique and sound production with the effort to bring truth and specificity, both to the song and to the role. Class material addressed may include solo performance, duet, or group scenes and is appropriate for both the professional and aspiring singing actor in whatever genre you may choose to focus your efforts (musical theatre, opera, concert/cabaret). Accompanist provided. Come prepared with a song (memorized and with sheet music properly prepared and in a binder for use by the accompanist).

Acting through Ensemble 1

This introduction to acting is a journey to explore meaning, and that which matters and rings true to each of you in regards to the telling of story. We will build a sacred space and connection where the group feels comfortable being playful and taking risks, lowering inhibitions to express yourself, in your own voice. We will explore important ideas in acting like, “stakes,” “action,” “intention,” “obstacle” “internal and external conflict,” and more. A variety of exercises and improvisations will illicit from you theme-based stories or moments from the past (as well as the imagination) that hold meaning now. You will be asked to create improvisations based on both your life and imagination, aimed at creating honest, compelling behavior to serve a story being told. The process will mirror the creation of Labyrinth Theater Company which became defined by three tenets: “Ensemble based - Multi-disciplinary - Self generating.” It will also offer tools and practice with “playing actions,” “developing a personal understanding of a role,” and perhaps most importantly, “listening.”

Acting through Ensemble 2

This training continues the process begun in Acting through Ensemble 1, this time offering you the chance to work on one monologue, one scene, and the opportunity to develop original work (e.g. personal storytelling, poetry, rap, character monologue, webisode, stand-up, etc.). We will start with activities that build trust in order to create a safe and sacred space that encourages participants to take real risks in following impulse and instinct to create raw and compelling work. Exercises will be used to both explore making specific and instinctual acting choices within a written scene, as well as creating an original piece. The culminating class will be a celebration and sharing of work. This work is steeped in a tradition that theater and storytelling has an important role in helping people connect with what matters to themselves and others, with as much joy and compassion as possible. Prerequisites: This course requires an audition for new students or faculty placement for continuing students. Open to students placed at Acting Level 2 and up.

Acting with the Camera 1

OPEN TO ALL. NO PREREQUISITE. This Level 1 acting class provides an introduction to the technique of living truthfully in front of the camera. You explore the fundamental elements of a grounded acting technique as they relate to the level of intimacy the camera demands. As you practice in front of the camera, you learn to stay open and work freely without hiding or acting for the lens. You develop the ability to listen and connect truthfully with a partner, letting that interaction guide your impulses. You discover the relevance of Uta Hagen's exercises for on camera work – building the 4th wall, creating place, connecting with sensory aspects of the environment – and begin to understand the level of preparation, specificity, and simplicity the camera demands. Students in David Deblinger's class have the option of receiving files of their recorded footage for a $25 download fee.

Acting with the Camera 2

PREREQUISITE: OPEN TO STUDENTS PLACED AT LEVEL 2 AND UP. NEW STUDENTS MUST AUDITION FOR PLACEMENT. (You will be dropped from this course if you register without audition/placement). This advanced scene study track is geared to the particular circumstances of working with the camera on film or video, and assumes you are already well grounded in acting technique, text analysis, and contemporary scene work. The class will address the adjustment you must make to the intimacy and immediacy of film, so you become accustomed to doing your best detailed, honest, layered work under the watchful eye of the lens. You learn to manage the tough realities of the film or television job, developing strategies for applying your own technique to the demands of the set. We consider angles, lenses, distances, continuity, and your relationship to the composition of the scene. You learn to work more quickly and more intimately, and to prepare effectively for a performance situation in which there is little or no rehearsal and scenes often occur out of sequence. You learn to respect and understand the financial, technical, and time considerations that govern film production, and cultivate the absolute discipline required to meet them.

Actuar en Español: Escenas

Actuar en Español: Escenas This class, conducted in Spanish, is a rigorous 10-week program introducing you to the process of preparing and rehearsing a scripted text. You will work on text analysis, table reading, and guided rehearsal from contemporary Hispanic plays. Uta Hagen's approach, as discussed in her book, A CHALLENGE FOR THE ACTOR, will guide you to find authentic inner connection to the character's details and circumstances and to choose truthful, effective and lively actions. Scenes will be presented in class, then reworked to explore and apply feedback. The class is open to Spanish-speaking actors who have taken a least two terms of Actuar en Español: Técnica, or by an audition for new students or faculty placement for continuing students. Open to Level 2 and up. Extensive research, preparation, and rehearsal are expected outside of class. Expected rehearsal time outside of class: 3-4 hours / week. $230.00 for 5 weeks or $445.00 for 10 weeks. To purchase both parts call the registration office at (212) 675-2370 x1----- Actuar en Español: Escenas Esta clase, dirigida en Español, consiste en un programa dinámico de 10 semanas en las que abordamos el proceso de prepararnos y ensayar un texto dramático. Trabajaremos en análisis de texto, trabajo de mesa, y ensayos guiados de obras hispanas contemporáneas. La técnica de Uta Hagen, discutida en su libro UN RETO PARA EL ACTOR nos guiará en la búsqueda de una conexión auténtica con las circunstancias del personaje, escogiendo las acciones más honestas acordes con dichas circunstancias y consiguiendo la organicidad y liberación de los impulsos. Las escenas se presentarán en clase, y luego se trabajarán y presentarán de nuevo para explorar y aplicar los comentarios recibidos. Esta clase está abierta a estudiantes de habla hispana que hayan tomado al menos dos trimestres de "Actuar en Español: Técnica" o que hayan alcanzado el nivel 2 en adelante. Se espera, por parte de los estudiantes, investigación extensa, preparación y ensayos fuera de la clase. Actuar en Español: Técnica

This class, conducted in Spanish, is a rigorous 10-week program divided into two 5-week parts. The class will probe the practical applications of Uta Hagen's approach as discussed in her book, A CHALLENGE FOR THE ACTOR. You will explore her exercises to solve acting challenges and gain a working understanding of the terms: objective, previous circumstances, destination, inner and outer objects, obstacles and expectations. You will learn to be in a state of discovery and develop tools of research and observation. Exercises are presented in class, then reworked to explore and apply feedback. The class is open to all levels. Must be fluent in Spanish. Extensive research, preparation and rehearsal are expected outside of class. Expected rehearsal time outside of class: 1-2 hours / week. -----Esta clase, dirigida en Español, consiste en un programa dinámico de 10 semanas dividido en dos partes de 5 semanas. La clase indagará en las aplicaciones prácticas de la técnica de Uta Hagen discutidas en su libro UN RETO PARA EL ACTOR. Se usarán los ejercicios de Uta Hagen como herramienta para enfrentar retos actorales y obtener una comprensión práctica de los conceptos: objetivo, circunstancias previas, destino, objetos internos y externos, obstáculos y expectativas. Alexander Technique

OPEN TO ALL. NO PREREQUISITE. The Alexander Technique is a gentle method through which you gradually learn to free yourself from unconscious physical habits that limit your ease, versatility, and freedom. This course will inquire into and enhance your "body map" – your conception of your body, as a whole and in specific areas. As you learn to release the downward pressure of your head to your spine, become clearer about your joints and how they work, and understand the unity of your body/mind and how it functions as a whole, you will gain access to an ever-increasing sensory awareness. Bringing conscious thought and awareness to daily life will allow you to change the habitual behavior that creates unneeded tension. Posture and self-use become conscious and volitional, not habitual and rigid. This translates to a greater possibility of fully embodying characters whose physical life is different from your own while maintaining healthy use of your body. Natural free use of the breath is addressed as a result of freeing the whole self, supporting your voice work. During each class you will have individual hands-on work as well as group activities.

Beyond Fluency

Presented by: Liz Eckert Katy Pronin The question "How do I make these words my own?" is at the core of the actor's craft. If you are speaking English as a second language, you may encounter additional stumbling blocks like getting stuck in "translator" mode, feeling emotionally disconnected from the language, and fearing being misunderstood. This Beyond Fluency course is designed to help you bridge the gap between the text and the self by unlocking the full expressive power of the language skills you already possess. The 10-week series guides you through activities to fully access your natural and learned language tools so that you can express yourself more freely, listen more intently and contribute more meaningfully in English. You will begin with a stream of consciousness to transform your written expression and immerse yourself in English-thinking. Voice and movement exercises will uncover the expressive musicality and physical experience of embodied language. You will find tools to use the grammar and vocabulary you already know in a much more personal way. After these foundational movements toward self-expression, we introduce storytelling to guide your thought. You will build on the momentum of conversation through active listening and engaged responsiveness. All of this serves the actor's calling to make meaningful connections with others through collaborative dialogue. "Let execution unfold beyond technique, beyond exertion, beyond thinking". -Jon Kabat Zinn

Director's New Play Lab

For directors both experienced and beginning, this Lab, lead by director Pat Golden, takes you through the director's process and culminates in a public showing of scenes from new work. You will be paired with a playwright from Julie McKee's advanced Playwriting - Studio Practice class to prep, cast, rehearse and present a scene from a new play. Initial classes focus on spacial relationships, composition, blocking and creating the atmosphere; script interpretation; the collaborative process between director and designer and working with the actor. In class you will experience working with these concepts in a practical manner. You'll have the opportunity to cast actors from HB's community and student pool. These topics are then explored and reinforced during the prep and rehearsal of the playwrights' scenes, to take place in classes leading up to the final presentation. Classes will include director's prep, casting sessions, in class rehearsals, and runs of your scenes. The work will be presented to an invited audience at the end of the term. This is an opportunity to work on a new play with a playwright, addressing the art of collaboration. Dramatist Guild Guidelines will be honored. Decisions regarding assignment and selection of the End-of-Term Projects are at the discretion of instructors, based on the merit of the work in class, and are by no means guaranteed.

Getting Back to One

Through rigorous practice and exploration designed to enrich the actor's wellbeing, you will explore multi-sensory approaches for developing a practice of preparation and post-performance self-care. We will use The Feldenkrais Method and other multi-sensory modalities to learn different strategies for shifting out of the conditioned psychophysical and emotional connections developed throughout life and when building a character, and into your self-identified optimal, life-affirming self – your ONE. The employment of movement, visualization, and breathing exercises helps you to feel and change habitual patterns, allowing you to recharge your mind/body, and rejuvenate your creative energy. Suggested dress: comfortable loose clothing.

Movement for Those Who Think They Can't

Presented by: Melana Lloyd Introduction To The Body. This class begins with movement basics to build your overall body awareness, with exploration of the body's core and the basis for core strength. You develop your sense of the body's parts: feet, ankles, knees, pelvis, waist, torso, shoulders, arms, wrists, hands, neck, head, using the language of imagination and imagery as it speaks to muscles, movement, and sensation, drawing on imaginary objects and the Laban efforts. We experiment with improvisation, experiencing different qualities of movement. We explore balance, standing up—sitting down, awareness of the floor/the ground, walking, running, swinging, rhythm. We encounter space and spacial relationships—near/nearer, far, in-front-of, in-back-of, beside—becoming aware of the physical elements we use in interaction and in conflict. We encounter time: fast and slow, duration, perception of duration, acceleration; shapes and what shapes imply: open/closed, big/small. You explore contact—taking another person's weight, lifts, falling—and learn about safety in partnering. Through these investigations we come to play and the fundamental, exhilarating joy of moving. This class is open to all levels.

Playwriting 1

Clarity, Economy and Mystery: Playwriting Workshop For new students, experienced playwrights who want to go back to the basics, actors wanting to write, and highly motivated beginners. You are introduced to a variety of tools designed to offer a strong sense of craft. Assignments, written as ten-minute plays, will cover dialogue, action, conflict, motivation, plot, structure, subtext, direct address and story. Others are designed to encourage the creative process, provoke the imagination, explore language, texture, character and impulse. These elements will be introduced slowly and methodically. You will develop a portfolio of well-crafted 10-minute plays in a safe and supportive environment. We follow the Liz Lerman Critical Response Process method of critique. PLEASE NOTE: You must complete the assignments before bringing in your own projects.

NOTE: A SCRIPT SUBMISSION IS REQUIRED FOR NEW STUDENTS TO BE CONSIDERED FOR THIS CLASS. SUBMISSIONS ARE ACCEPTED YEAR AROUND. THERE IS A $15.00 NON-REFUNDABLE FEE FOR EACH SUBMISSION. APPLICATION You will have demonstrated a commitment to the art and craft of playwriting, possess a thorough grasp in practical terms of the vocabulary and technical skills presented in Playwriting 1, and be able to engage with and support your fellow artists with lively and generous discussion. You are ready to embark on longer plays with multiple characters. These plays are guided from the creative impulse of the first draft to clarifying, exploring and shaping the second. You are ready to embrace and delve more deeply into the challenges of the revision, sacrificing favorite lines and notions to dramaturgical momentum, as mastery of the rewrite becomes a thrilling and joyful venture.

Scene Study 2-3 with Hagen Exercises

Open to students placed at level 2 and up. New students must audition for placement. For intermediate and advanced actors, this scene study class uses Uta Hagen's acting exercises to introduce tools, reinforce technique and lay a foundation for the actor's process. Rehearsed scenes and exercises are presented in class for critique, then reworked to explore and apply feedback. Hagen's exercises are assigned diagnostically to address challenges as they arise. At the intermediate level, you explore the practical application of technique to the preparation, rehearsal, and presentation of scenes from contemporary realist plays (mid-20th century to present). Advanced actors will apply more complex lessons in technique and text analysis to scenes from a range of contemporary and classic plays. This work may incorporate Modern (19th/early 20th century) and Classical texts, as well as heightened, non-linear, and experimental material. Extensive research, preparation, and rehearsal are expected outside of class. Skills: understanding and realizing the event of the scene; layering conscious and unconscious behavior; applying technique as a tool to solve challenges outside your comfort zone; transformation of self. Through extensive examination, research, and experiment, you discover and rediscover the level of action and commitment needed to fulfill the form and idea of the play. Expected rehearsal time outside of class: 3-6+ hours/week

Singing Voice 1

Singing and the ability to use the voice as an expressive instrument are an essential part of your skill set as an actor. Most actors will be called upon to sing at some point, regardless of whether your interests and talents run to musical theater. The study and practice of singing enhances your sense of musical form, pitch, rhythm, and language, and brings greater freedom, range and timbre to the speaking voice. Level 1 Singing is open to all – from total beginners to those who want to reinforce basic technique or strengthen your vocal instrument. The focus is on freeing, developing and strengthening the voice. Exercises emphasize relaxation and the most effective use of breath, an even use of the voice throughout the range, and awareness of how the entire body contributes to the production of sound. Level 1 will incorporate group and individual exercises, and work on songs of different genres. [Accompanist provided.]

Singing Voice 2

PREREQUISITE: OPEN TO STUDENTS PLACED AT SINGING LEVEL 2 AND UP. NEW STUDENTS MUST AUDITION FOR PLACEMENT. (You will be dropped from this course if you register without audition/placement). This level is for you if you have some foundation in singing technique, having developed a connection of the voice to the breath, a practiced and heightened listening ability, a sense of phrasing and an ability to practice on your own. Class work will continue to develop singing technique and musicianship, with exercises to support the development of vocal control, flexibility and range. You will be asked to treat the song lyric as text not unlike that of a script, toward the goal of memorized presentation and interpretation of the song. [Accompanist provided.]

Speaking Voice 1

OPEN TO ALL. NO PREREQUISITE. This class employs the deconstructing and restructuring processes of Fitzmaurice Voicework® devised by Catherine Fitzmaurice. Training in voice work begins with the cultivation of deep physical awareness. Specific attention will be given to how the body—bones, muscles, breath, and nervous system – relates to healthy vocal production and vocal freedom. Examine how it feels to stand on your feet. Learn about how you live in your body, how you relate to your head and neck and shoulders. Discover how this affects your use of voice and influences healthy vocal spontaneity and expressiveness. Develop curiosity about these sensations and the circumstances and habits that affect them. Work through specific exercises to develop a Level 1 vocal and creative warm up sequence that will become your ongoing practice. Through your warm up become used to the process of checking in: recognizing and allowing the physical/emotional moment you are in and the circumstances that attend it, experiencing the moment, and working from it. Develop a relationship with the habitual patterns that influence how you engage with yourself—your skeletal and muscular structures, autonomic nervous system, your breath and your voice. Develop spontaneity, learning what it feels like to give in to a physical experience. With curiosity, explore and experience rigidity in the body through the release of tension, breathing, and spontaneous truthful sound. Learn the basic anatomy that supports breathing, sound making, and articulation in speech. Throughout Level 1 you are asked to discover your own process and be with others in theirs, so together the group develops a sense of what it means to be heard, seen and understood. Be advised that this Level requires time to master, and most actors will need a two- or three- term investment at Level 1 to develop awareness and become confident in these practices. All else in voice and speech work will build on this foundation.

Speaking Voice 2

PREREQUISITE: COMPLETION OF SPEAKING VOICE 1 OR FACULTY PLACEMENT. (You will be dropped from this course if you register without meeting the prerequisite.) This class employs the deconstructing and restructuring processes of Fitzmaurice Voicework® devised by Catherine Fitzmaurice. Apply more deeply the practices of Level 1, working from your growing visceral and kinesthetic body awareness. Continue working through your vocal and creative warm up, taking greater ownership of your practice. You are guided to work with greater ease, spontaneity and intention, and with a deeper sense of truth. You will work with imagery, directed sound and movement to communicate with intention. You will examine how intention relates to release and to the support of your voice, as you bring your vocal work to the effort to communicate and the desire to be heard. Learn what intention includes vocally, in terms of inner life and moment-to-moment work. Discover greater resonance and vibrancy, as you become aware of the space around you and consider the need to be heard in any circumstance, with any piece of text. Deepen your release of the jaw and neck, and the body overall. Incorporate the expressive powers of articulation, sound and resonance. Building upon your Level 1 understanding of Fitzmaurice Voicework®, you are guided to develop your own vocal practice and challenged to keep venturing beyond your comfort zone. During Level 2 you will use a piece of text to add imagery and meaning to your work.

Speaking Voice Studio Practice: Fitzmaurice

PREREQUISITE: Professional experience and/or a solid foundation in acting are required to enter this class. Open to actors placed at Voice level 3 and up, or those who have previously worked with Ilse Pfeifer or have other advanced Fitzmaurice Voicework® training. This class builds on the deconstructing and restructuring processes of Fitzmaurice Voicework® devised by Catherine Fitzmaurice. Advanced experimental work in voice, further exploring skills and awareness developed in Levels 1-3, incorporating speech, text, and movement. This class functions as a workout for advanced students, giving you the opportunity to continue building synthesis with the different aspects of your acting work, and also to address specific individual problems and challenges arising from your efforts in performance and rehearsal. You will explore a variety of texts and circumstances with an ever more complex sense of the layering of language, sound, form, and meaning. Preparation requirements: You are working on a specific play or text and you are aware of aspects of your work that require an integration. This includes body-based needs such as vocal alignment, physical variations to a character's circumstances, and other needs that can be addressed through voice and movement work. You are required to bring in all of your actor's background preparatory work such as: text analysis, objectives, and circumstances of the character and of the play over-all. You are also asked to bring in specific questions and observations, relating to healthy vocal and physical expressivity, that arise as you practice and work.

Speech 1

OPEN TO ALL. NO PREREQUISITE. Drawing upon Knight Thompson Speechwork, Level 1 Speech is designed to develop your awareness of the physiological components and physical actions of speech. You will learn speech anatomy, with exploration and play through the vocal tract. The class will make a careful study of all the possible consonant actions and experiment with oral postures. You will begin to explore an international range of possible speech sounds, developing the ability to perceive and experience shades of difference. These fundamental practices will be useful to both native and non-native American speakers.

Speech 2

PREREQUISITE: At least one term of Speech 1. (You will be dropped from this course if you register without prerequisite). Continuing with the foundation laid in Speech 1, you are introduced to the International Phonetic Alphabet (IPA), and over time (and in subsequent levels), will develop a deep, physical working knowledge of this system, which provides a basis for analyzing, practicing, and acquiring a gamut of different accents and patterns of speaking. Through practice, you will work to develop flexibility, muscularity, and specificity in producing speech sounds. The goal is to increase intelligibility as well as flexibility in handling the specific demands of any given language, text or scene. These fundamental practices will be useful to both native and non-native American speakers.

Speech 3

Continuing with the foundation laid in Speech 1 and Speech 2, you will continue to develop and deepen your working knowledge of the International Phonetic Alphabet (IPA) as an essential and practical actor's tool in service to clarity of communication. Concepts such as deep listening, the skills of intelligibility, and J.C. Wells' Lexical Sets will be employed and added to the your ever expanding tool kit. In addition to working with a wide array of texts, a focus of the class will center upon the study of and subsequent embodiment of an idiolect, (the speech patterns unique to a particular individual) of your choosing. The goal is to expand and deepen speech skills, acquiring greater specificity of articulatory action. These practices and skills will be useful to both native and non-native American speakers. Speaking with Skill by Dudley Knight, is the required text. Prerequisite: Completion of Speech 1 and 2 is recommended but not required.

The Art of Transformation

Winter 2019: Chekhov on Chekhov - Anton his Nephew Michael Application of Michael Chekhov Technique to THE THREE SISTERS An advanced two-part movement for actors course. You are invited to sign up for either five-week part or for the full ten weeks: $180 each or both for $345. To do so, please give our registration office a call at (212)-675-2370 x1. This class explores Michael Chekhov's "psycho-physical" approach to acting, through core principles and exercises outlined in his book, TO THE ACTOR, including ensemble-based psychophysical exercises, character exploration and ensemble improvisation. Each class begins with a warm-up specifically designed to develop the organic connection between your inner life, creative imagination and expressive body. Through the rigorous practice of Chekhov's core principles and exercises you explore: Radiating and Receiving, Archetypes, Imaginary Centers, Imaginary Body, Character Centers, Character Atmospheres, Character Portrait, Qualities of Movement, Expansion Contraction, Imaginary Palace, and Character Archetypal Gestures. We explore scoring the Overall and Scenic Atmospheres of the play, History of world and of the era, Period Style, Character Status, Atmospheres and Archetypes leading to the Character's Psychological Gestures. Using the text of Anton Chekhov's THE THREE SISTERS and his other major works, we explore how to score and apply Michael Chekhov's tools to text and ensemble rehearsal. Michael Chekhov technique consists of a wide variety of effective acting tools, which can inspire endless exploration and possibilities for ensemble building and enlarging the actor's physical ease, creative imagination, transformation and artistic expression. The actor can then bring this sensibility to the creation of a character, exploration of the text, the acting ensemble in rehearsal, and inspired performance. $180.00 for 5 weeks or $345.00 for 10 weeks. To purchase both parts A B, call the registration office at (212) 675-2370 x1

Hagen Teen Intensive: The Program

OPEN TO ALL. NO PREREQUISITE. Instructors: Trudy Steibl (Acting), Martha Bernard (Movement Singing), Adona Butler (Speaking Voice)(AGES 14 – 17)For young people who are serious about the theatre, this Sunday conservatory invites you to fall in love with the actor’s process. Each term has a different focus and may be taken separately or in sequence. Movement, Voice, and Acting Technique are integral to the program. The full year will provide strong preparation for students seeking to continue on in college or conservatory programs. An actor has to have a different knowledge of what it is to be a human being. We begin with Herbert Berghof’s definition of acting: “I am. I want. I do.” Get to know yourself through exploring your senses, your body, your breath, and your voice; then begin to expand your understanding of who you are and who you could be. In a joyful and supportive atmosphere, we strive to teach you a way of working. Gain courage to be yourself, to show up fully and explore your potentials through doing. Bring the 3 P’s: Patience, Passion, Persistence. (Please also bring your lunch, comfortable clothing to move in, and a yoga mat if you have one!)
